

Rhinos Who Surf by Julie Mammano

Rhinos who surf
get up early.
They grab their boards...
and hop in the car.

As they jam
to the beach,
they scrounge
for quarters
to feed the meter.

The waves are major huge and fully pumping!

They wax their boards.
They paddle out.

Rhinos who surf have no
fear of mondo waves.
They shred!
They drop in!

They carve up the face.
They go vertical
and slam the lip.
They pull killer aerials.

When they shoot the tube,
they are way cool in
the green room.

Rhinos who surf have full-on gnarly
wipe-outs.

They are pitched
over the falls.
They are launched
through the air.

They are
thrashed in the
rinse cycle below.

They are forced to bail
on some tasty rides
When dweebs
snake their waves.

They surf until the
sun goes down,
then they ride
the last wave to shore.

They are totally amped.

Rhinos who surf are way tired and dream about another day of excellent and awesome surf.
